

Official version

Nowhere to Go

by DJ Michael & the Thunderwaves

ISRC: CBFQD2500012 - August 2025

I reach for you in the quiet night,
But all I find is empty light.
The world still spins, but I'm standing still,
Caught in a dream I can't fulfill.

Where do I place this love inside?
It has no hands, it has no guide.
Drifting through echoes of yesterday,
Trying to find you, but you slip away.

Grief is love with nowhere to go,
A silent storm, a heavy glow.
It rises, it falls, it won't let me be,
But in the dark, you're here with me.

I trace your name in the morning frost,
Each letter a shadow of what I've lost.
I speak aloud, but the words fall flat,
No voice to answer, no echo back.

Where do I place this love inside?
It has no home, it has no tide.

Drifting like stars in the endless night,
Trying to hold you, but you're out of sight.

Grief is love with nowhere to go,
A silent storm, a heavy glow.
It rises, it falls, it won't let me be,
But in the dark, you're here with me.

I won't move on, but I'll move through,
Learning to carry the weight of you.
You're not just gone, you're part of me,
Etched in my heart, eternally.

Grief is love with nowhere to go,
But I feel you still, I hope you know.
In laughter, in light, in whispers low,
You're never gone—you're in my soul.

So I'll walk this road, though it feels unknown,
With love that lingers, though you are gone.
ummmm...ummmm....ummmm

Credits

Written and composed by DJ Michael of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Remixed, mastered, and distributed by ThunderMusic of Digital Thunder Media Productions, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada.

Copyright DJ Michael & Digital Thunder Media Productions - August 2025
www.digitalthunder.ca/thundermusic – All rights reserved - 100% made in Canada

Available on Spotify, Apple Music, Amazon Music, YouTube Music, iTunes, IHeartRadio